Welcome to our Annual Report for 2016. It has been a busy and exciting year for the Foundation as we continued to support a wide range of charitable initiatives throughout the UK. Almost £1.19 million was awarded to 24 projects, which have collectively made a positive impact on the lives of more than 128,000 people.

We were delighted to be recognised by Arts & Business Cymru at its annual awards ceremony, which celebrates the success in which businesses large and small and the arts collaborate to support the local community. Not only was the Foundation a finalist for ‘Company of the Year’, but we also won the Arts, Business and Young People Award in recognition of our support for The Aloud Charity and Theatr Clwyd.

I would like to thank my fellow Trustees, our Company Secretary and the wider team of staff at ScottishPower for their hard work and support throughout the year. On behalf of all at the Foundation, I would also like to pay tribute to our former Trustee and Executive Officer, Ann Loughrey, who was instrumental in the establishment of the Foundation and we wish her the very best for her next chapter.

We now welcome Ann McKechnie, who was appointed as Trustee and Executive Officer in April 2017, and we look forward to working together over the coming year as the Foundation continues to play a vital role in supporting the charitable sector in communities throughout the UK.

I hope that you enjoy reading this report and we welcome your feedback.

A CLOSER LOOK AT SCHOLARSHIPS

Supporting future leaders through our Scholarships Programme.

During 2016, the ScottishPower Foundation awarded 18 scholarships as part of a wider International Scholarship Programme supported by the Iberdrola Group; equipping a new generation with the skills and knowledge they need to lead the energy industry into the future.

After a competitive online application round, followed by a face-to-face interview, the successful students were invited to receive their scholarship award at an international ceremony held in Madrid last July.

Covering full enrolment costs as well as a generous living allowance, the scholarships were awarded for Masters in energy and environment related fields including renewable and sustainable energy systems, clean combustion technologies, electric vehicles, and smart distribution networks.

Scholarships are available at seven of the UK’s most prestigious institutions including Imperial College London, University of Cambridge, University of East Anglia, University of Edinburgh, University of Glasgow, University of Liverpool and University of Strathclyde.

Keith Anderson, Trustee of the ScottishPower Foundation, commented: “There is no doubt that the future of the energy industry lies in the hands of our bright young people and the ScottishPower Foundation is committed to supporting the advancement of their education. We’re delighted to be bringing back the Scholarships programme on a bigger scale than ever before, it presents a huge opportunity for graduates and we’re really excited to see where it takes them in their careers.”

More than £850,000 has been invested in scholarships for UK students so far, and 2017 is set to be the biggest funding year yet with approximately £700,000 being awarded by the Foundation.

CASE STUDY

MICHAEL BUSH

Michael funded his MSc in Sustainable Energy at the University of Strathclyde with a scholarship from the ScottishPower Foundation.

WHY DID YOU DECIDE TO PURSUE A POSTGRADUATE COURSE?

“When studying clean technology and renewable energy for four years as an undergraduate, I knew that I wanted to learn more about the industry and thought the best way to do this would be further education.”

HOW DID YOU FUND YOUR POSTGRADUATE STUDY?

“The only way I could fund my postgraduate degree was to look for a scholarship. I learned about the ScottishPower Foundation Scholarship programme and was lucky enough to obtain a place. The scholarship was fantastic and provided me with real security. It covered my full enrolment costs and a really generous living allowance. This was important as my workload was quite heavy and the money allowed me to focus on my studies and get the most from the course instead of worrying about taking up a part-time job.”

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE SINCE GRADUATION?

“I recently finished an engineering graduate scheme with SP Energy Networks. Since then I’ve moved to Madrid to take up a role on an international programme as a technical support project engineer for Iberdrola Distribución Eléctrica, part of the Iberdrola Group.”

WHAT ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE TO SOMEONE WHO IS CONSIDERING APPLYING FOR A SCHOLARSHIP?

“From start to finish, the ScottishPower Foundation Scholarships programme was a truly brilliant experience. If I had gone straight into the working world, I doubt I would have had the same valuable lessons and advice so early on in my career. Having the financial support from the ScottishPower Foundation meant I was able to focus on the task in hand and would encourage anyone thinking about a future in the energy sector to apply.”
Seven UK-based charities were given a collective funding boost of £30,000 from the ScottishPower Foundation at its annual Awards ceremony which took place at Theatr Clwyd in Mold, Flintshire on 21 September.

Music in Hospitals, The 2050 Climate Group, Perth Autism Support, NSPCC Scotland, Scottish Huntington’s Association, O Ddrws I Ddrws and Llangollen International Musical Eisteddfod were all recognised at the event.

There were four categories - with winners receiving £5,000 each and runners-up receiving £2,500.

COMMUNITY IMPACT AND ENGAGEMENT AWARD
Winner – Music in Hospitals
Runner Up – The 2050 Climate Group

EDUCATION PARTNERSHIP AWARD
Winner – Perth Autism Support

INNOVATION AWARD
Winner – The 2050 Climate Group

CHARITY CHAMPION
Winner – Sarah Winckless MBE – Scottish Huntington’s Association
Runner Up – Brian Hughes – O Ddrws I Ddrws

Special mention was paid to Sarah Winckless MBE of Scottish Huntington’s Association, who was crowned Charity Champion – a category which recognises the outstanding achievements made by an individual for their organisation and the local community.

British bronze medallist rower, Sarah has been Patron of Scottish Huntington’s Association since 2009. When she was 22 she discovered that she had inherited the faulty Huntington’s gene. During her time with the charity she has helped to raise awareness of the disease and support young people living with the condition, and she was awarded an MBE in the Queen’s Birthday Honours 2015 for services to sport and young people.

John Eden, chief executive of Scottish Huntington’s Association, said: “We are absolutely thrilled for Sarah. She has opened her heart to others facing the same challenge, inspiring them to live with a positive mental attitude and she has tirelessly raised awareness and funds for this under-recognised condition. It is with the support of the ScottishPower Foundation that the work of Sarah and our charity can continue throughout Scotland and we’re very grateful.”

Sarah commented: “What a truly wonderful surprise. I am so thankful to be recognised by the ScottishPower Foundation, but more importantly I am delighted that Scottish Huntington’s Association will be able to use the generous funding to help continue the really important work we do to combat the effects of Huntington’s disease in Scotland.”

CLWYD THEATRE CYMRU DEVELOPMENT TRUST

Clwyd Theatr Cymru is North Wales’ major drama producing operation, which also presents much of its work on tour throughout Wales and the rest of the UK. Justice in a Day and its sequel Connor’s Time use professional actors to examine, through interactive and hard hitting workshops, the causes and consequences of becoming involved in criminal behaviour. Funding enabled the theatre to deliver the programme in an extended area of north Wales; engaging directly with the justice service, schools and almost 900 young people.

“The impact of the work was significant and the students still talk about it 6 months later. When the Theatre came into school to do the follow up Connor’s Story - students were engaged and genuinely interested to see how he had moved on. This is a piece of work that changed mind sets and also got young people interested and talking about how they could get involved with the Criminal Justice Service as a career.” Flint High School

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF WALES

The project recognised and celebrated the fantastic achievements of the children taking part and enabled the Library to reach out into the community to share the culture and heritage of the local area.

“This kind of partnership is fantastic for the school, and provides an opportunity to raise the pupils’ awareness about the work and collections of our National Library. Bringing an important masterpiece to the school is an exciting way of boosting the children’s enthusiasm and their desire to learn about art in Wales. Dolbadarn pupils will definitely benefit from this invaluable experience, and we look forward to visiting the National Library of Wales soon to view other national treasures.” Bethan Wyn Jones, Head Teacher at Ysgol Dolbadarn

Funding helped to establish CU’s in 4 new local authorities bringing the total number in Scotland to 11. 31% of all local authorities in Scotland. Over 2,200 learning passports were issued during the year, generating over 51,000 learning hours, and to date CU has engaged with a total of 6,670 young people.

Much of RSPB’s Loch Lomond nature reserve is a wetland that is prone to flooding in the winter, which is ideal for wildlife but not for visitors! Funding enabled RSPB to build the first phase of a new pathway, transforming access for visitors wanting to discover the site’s beautiful vistas and wildlife. With 50% of Scotland’s population living within an hour’s drive of the reserve, the pathway is helping visitors to engage with and get closer to a wider array of iconic Scottish species including pine martens, otters, red squirrels, small pearl bordered fritillary butterflies, great otter spiders and the UK’s only population of Scottish dock plants. The path begins at the new visitor hub and weaves its way through woodland full of bluebells in the spring, leading to a beautiful pond which will form a key focus for visiting school groups and families.

The 2050 Climate Group

The 2050 Climate Group is a collection of young professionals from across Scotland who all share a commitment to supporting Scotland’s transition to a sustainable, low carbon economy and significantly cutting carbon emissions. It aims to engage, educate and empower future leaders aged 20-30 in Scotland to take action on climate change, whatever sector they work in. Funding enabled 150 young people to take part in the Young Leaders Development Programme; attending a series of climate change and leadership events, and tackling challenges to put their new skills and knowledge into practice.

“I was delighted to speak at the 2050 Climate Group’s second Youth Summit. What Scotland will look like in 2050 will be shaped by the collective actions of young leaders across the country and it is very encouraging to see so much enthusiasm for a cleaner, greener, fairer Scotland. We need Scotland’s young people to drive the change needed in the period to 2030 by which time my generation will have passed on the baton to them and I believe the contribution of Scotland’s young people to our climate change action has been inspiring to date.” Paul Wheelhouse MSP, Minister for Business, Innovation and Energy

National Museums Scotland

Each year National Museums Scotland welcomes millions of visitors to its four museum sites: the National Museum of Scotland and National War Museum in Edinburgh, the National Museum of Flight in East Lothian and the National Museum of Rural Life in East Kilbride. Funding supported the continuation of the “Get Energised” education programme; which brings together curatorial, industry and education and engagement experts to create a series of events and activities for a range of different audiences to investigate Scotland’s future energy needs, focusing particularly on renewable energy. Funding also supported the Energise Gallery, one of ten new galleries opened to the general public in July, which encourages visitors to consider energy challenges we face today, the impact of choices people make and to develop informed attitudes about the future of energy.

“The support of the ScottishPower Foundation both in funding this ground-breaking gallery and our associated learning programmes has been fundamental to our success. We look forward to continuing this fruitful partnership as we help our visitors explore, through the Energise gallery, the different sources of energy which power our everyday lives.” Bruce Minto, Chair of National Museums Scotland

PRINCIPAL FUNDING SOURCES

INVESTMENT POLICY

Aside from retaining a prudent amount in reserves each period, most of the charity’s funds are to be spent in the short term so there are few funds for long term investment. The Trustees have noted their intention to review the banking arrangements on an on-going basis, thereby ensuring maximum returns for the Foundation as far as possible.

Trustees ask the Treasurer to consider the best banking option for trust funds in the current economic climate and this is kept under review and discussed at Trustee meetings.

RESERVES POLICY

The reserves are needed to meet the working capital requirements of the Foundation during a period of substantial growth and the Trustees remain confident that the current level of reserves is sufficient to allow the continued activity of the Foundation through 2017. The charity currently has unrestricted funds of £115,423.
